Community engagement training

Aims of the training

The aim of this training is to introduce participants to the concepts of community engagement and to provide information and examples of good practice directly relevant to their own roles. The training comes directly from the Community Engagement Framework (December 2008) which seeks to:

“Develop a cross sector training and development programme targeted at residents, community groups, ‘front line’ workers, managers, policy makers, businesses and councillors on how to achieve high quality community engagement.”

“Being engaged supports the wellbeing of the community and encourages others to make it a better place to live ”

Quote from the consultation on the Community Engagement Framework

The training is delivered over three full days. At the end of the training participants will be able to.....

- Explain what a community is
- Explain what neighbourhood decision making is and how communities can be empowered through this approach
- Describe the benefits of engagement with communities for their role
- Outline how to make initial contact with residents in the community
- Devise a plan to identify the needs and interests of a community known to them
- Produce a personal action plan to develop community engagement
- Reflect on the implementation of the group’s personal action plans
- Make suggestions for the development of the action plans

“It’s important that you are involved in the decisions that will affect you – engagement should happen at lots of different levels and be broad ranging.”
