For professionals who work with people affected by changes to welfare benefits

Universal Credit in Brighton & Hove

Universal Credit is a new benefit for people of working age. It replaces most existing means-tested benefits.

Universal Credit will be the benefit most households will claim starting from October 2017 in Brighton & Hove.

This will be for people making new claims for benefits and, in some cases, for people already claiming benefits who have a change in their circumstances.

Families with more than two children will claim existing benefits up to 31 January 2019, but will not be paid for a third or subsequent child born after 6 April 2017.

Our current information is that claims in the city are planned to come in as follows:

- BN3 4 October 2017
- BN2 29 November 2017
- BN41 & BN1 17 January 2018

This booklet is for professionals who support claimants who may be on benefits. It explains some of the main changes and where people can get additional help in Brighton & Hove.

Brighton & Hove
City Council

What is Universal Credit?

Universal Credit replaces Jobseeker's Allowance (income based), Employment Support Allowance (income based), Income Support, Working Tax Credit, Child Tax Credit and Housing Benefit.

Separate claims will still need to be made for other benefits such as Child Benefit, Disability Living Allowance, Personal Independence Payment and Council Tax Reduction.

How is Universal Credit different from current benefits?

- Most claims for Universal Credit will be made and maintained online.
- The amount paid for rent will normally be paid to the tenant not the landlord.
- Universal Credit will normally be paid once a month to one person in the household.
- The first payment will normally take at least six weeks. This is due to change in February 2018, when it will normally take at least five weeks.
- In most cases there will be no money paid for the first seven days after the claim. This is due to change in February 2018, when money will be paid for that period.
- Help with housing costs for 18-21 year olds has been restricted to those that are deemed to be vulnerable – see page 4 for more details.

Applying for Universal Credit

- Claimants will usually have to apply for Universal Credit online. If they are unable to make a claim online, they should contact the Jobcentre.
- Within 28 days of making an application, online claimants must phone the Universal Credit Service Centre on 0800 3285644 (option 1) to book an interview at their local Jobcentre. (although it will speed up the claim if people make the appointment faster than this)
- At the interview, the claimant will have to provide documentary evidence in support of their claim - this could include things like a tenancy agreement or photo identification. Not attending this interview or failing to provide this information could mean the Universal Credit claim stops.

Potential issues with Universal Credit

Solutions and help

Issues with making a claim

People need help to claim online or they don't have access to a computer or email address.

Call the Moneyworks Advice Line on 0800 988 7037 for free independent help or speak to the Jobcentre.

People do not have a bank account.

Call the Moneyworks Advice Line on 0800 988 7037 for free independent help or speak to the Jobcentre.

When the claim starts from.

Universal Credit will normally start when a claim is made. In some cases, where there is good cause, claims can be backdated for up to a month. Backdating can be requested when a claim is made and reasons must be given for the delay in claiming. Universal Credit includes housing costs, so it is important that claims are made on time to avoid rent arrears.

Issues with maintaining a claim

Keeping the claim for Universal Credit active.

To keep the claim active, it is important for Universal Credit claimants to:

- Provide all information and evidence Jobcentre Plus ask for
- Keep all appointments at the Jobcentre
- Check their online journal daily or very regularly and when prompted by text or email. Not checking the online journal regularly could mean that an appointment is missed and this could lead a UC sanction and the benefit being reduced.
- Keep to the terms of the claimant commitment
- Tell the Jobcentre about changes of circumstances

Meeting the terms of the claimant commitment.

To get Universal Credit, a claimant will have to agree to a 'claimant commitment' which is an agreement about what activities they will do.

To make sure the claimant commitment takes into account individual circumstances, it's important that claimants tell the Jobcentre about any issues or vulnerabilities they have. For example, if they:

- look after children
- have a disability or health condition
- don't have good reading or writing skills
- have a learning disability
- look after someone with a disability
- have been a victim of domestic violence within the last six months
- are homeless
- are undergoing treatment for a drug or alcohol problem
- have to do jury service
- any other issue that might be relevant

The claimant commitment can continue to apply to people who are working part time and they may be expected to make efforts to increase the number of hours they work.

Issues with rent

What if someone can't manage to pay their rent?

They can apply to have the rent element of Universal Credit paid directly to their landlord. They can do this via their online journal or by speaking to their Jobcentre work coach. They should tell the Jobcentre if they previously had their Housing Benefit paid to the landlord.

What if people do not receive enough Universal Credit to pay their rent?

This can be done by the landlord if there are arrears with the rent. To do this, a landlord will have to apply for an 'Alternative Payment Arrangement'. Go to www.gov.uk and search for 'UC47'.

Housing Benefit run on

If a person claiming Universal Credit was on Housing Benefit immediately before claiming UC, from April 2018 they should receive an extra two weeks overlapping Housing Benefit payments

Housing costs not available for people aged under 22.

The housing element of Universal Credit will not always be payable to people under 22 but there are exceptions.

People can apply to the council for a Discretionary Housing Payment. For more information, go to www.brighton-hove.gov.uk/discretionarypayments

There are a number of people under 22 who are exempt from this rule, including:

- people receiving Universal Credit housing costs before 1 April 2017 until they move off Universal Credit or cease to claim those housing costs
- certain vulnerable people
- people unable to live with their parents
- people claiming as a couple
- people who are not subject to all work-related requirements for receiving Universal Credit
- people who are in work, subject to minimum earnings
- people who have recently left work, subject to minimum earnings (in this case, the help is available for a limited time only)
- people who have left care

It is vital claimants tell the Jobcentre if any of these apply to them. The council's housing and children's services will be able to provide evidence to support some of these situations. For more information, the council's welfare rights team have produced a factsheet on 18-21 year olds and UC available from www.brighton-hove.gov.uk/benefit-factsheets

Issues with managing money

People need help with budgeting on a monthly income.

Call the Moneyworks Advice Line on 0800 988 7037 for free independent help.

They can talk to their Jobcentre work coach and ask to be referred for help. They could ask for the UC to be paid more frequently if they are struggling to manage – they can do this by phone or by requesting this through the UC journal.

What if payment to one person in the household is not appropriate, for example in the case of domestic violence, financial coercion or where there may be addiction issues?

They can apply to have the Universal Credit payment split. Request this via the journal or speak to the Jobcentre work coach.

Issues with giving help to someone claiming Universal Credit

Advisors and support staff helping someone with their claim

People supporting claimants on Universal Credit will only be able to talk to the Universal Credit Service Centre if the claimant is with them. There is no provision for ongoing consent but the claimant can provide permission on the journal for an advocate to deal with a specific matter. They would need to state who the advocate is and the problem they want help with.

Issue with the amount of money paid by Universal Credit

Claimants struggle waiting for six weeks for their first payment

They can apply for an advance payment from the Universal Credit service centre 0800 3285644. This is a loan paid back over six months or twelve months. From January 2018, all advances will be paid back over 12 months.

- They can use savings or last payment of previous wages if there are any.
- They can apply to the Brighton & Hove Local Discretionary Social Fund. For more information, go to www.brighton-hove.gov.uk/ldsf

No benefit payable for the first seven days

The seven-day waiting period will no longer apply from February 2018. Until February 2018, the seven-day waiting period is still in place for some people but won't apply if claimants:

- Have claimed Universal Credit within the past six months
- Are splitting up from or moving in with someone who's already claiming Universal Credit
- Are moving on to Universal Credit from another 'legacy' benefit, such as JSA (income-based)
- Are terminally ill
- Are vulnerable, for example they've recently been a victim of domestic violence or are leaving care or prison

It is important for claimants to tell the Jobcentre if any of these things apply to them.

Self-employed people

Universal Credit has rules which mean that once a person has been self-employed for 12 months, it is assumed that they will earn an income equivalent to the national minimum wage times the number of hours they are expected to work, which could mean they receive less Universal Credit. In this case, claimants should talk to their Jobcentre work coach about help that may be available or other ways of finding work.

What about support for Council Tax

People will still need to make a separate claim for Council Tax Reduction from the council. It is important to do this straight away to avoid getting into arrears with Council Tax. For more information, go to www.brighton-hove.gov.uk/help-with-council-tax

Other things to note

- Claimants will need an email address and bank account in order to make their claim online.
- People with three or more children will not be asked to claim Universal Credit until February 2019 (at the earliest) unless they already get UC.
- People who live in Supported Accommodation (and from April 2018 some types of accommodation for homeless people) will still get their housing costs met through Housing Benefit, although they will have to claim Universal Credit for their living costs.

- At the time of writing, the rollout by postcode is planned to be:
 - BN3 4 October 2017
 - BN2 29 November 2017
 - BN1 and BN41 17 January 2018

Help finding other accommodation

The council is working with HomefinderUK (homefinderuk.org) to help households facing homelessness or other social tenants to move to more affordable social housing in other parts of the country if this is their choice.

Council help with housing

People affected by any of the changes set out in this leaflet may have difficulty paying rent.

You must ensure that you seek the help and advice contained in this leaflet as early as possible.

Everyone working with families and other households is committed to preventing homelessness but this can only succeed if you act early. If you cannot stay in your home, alternatives are increasingly out of the city boundaries because accommodation in the city is unaffordable.

The council's Housing Options Service can help you keep your home, find alternative housing and negotiate with landlords about problems you may have, such as rent. If you become homeless, the council will assist people it has a legal duty to help and will give advice to others. Housing provided by the council is likely to be out of the city.

Gas and electricity charges

There are several ways that gas and electricity bills can be reduced including:

- Switching supplier or switching to the supplier's cheapest tariff
- Buying both gas and electricity from the same company – this is known as dual fuel
- Paying monthly by direct debit
- Asking the supplier if they have any special rates for people needing extra help, for example if anyone in the household is on benefits or has a disability
- Some people qualify for the Warm Home Discount Scheme, whereby energy suppliers can give a £140 discount to customers in vulnerable groups (check with the energy supplier as eligibility criteria varies between companies)
- Households should always do their own meter reading every time they receive a bill, if bills are paid by direct debit, there could either be an overpayment and the customer could be entitled to a rebate, or be underpaying and end up with a bill at the end of the year
