New England Quarter

Wooden hoardings, spray paint

Started 2005 changes annually during the Hip Hop Festival in July.

The urban art wall is made up of 4-500 metres of builders hoarding which have been put up around the New England Quarter site near Brighton station. The project is collaboration between Brighton Hip Hop festival (risingstyles.com), QED developers and Brighton & Hove City Council. Each year in July graffiti artists are invited to come and paint a section of the hoardings, this project is seen as a way for the city to promote high quality graffiti artwork that is being carried out in a positive way.
